Service Timeline

1. Conscription and Enlistment (May 1918)

- May 20, 1918: Formally drafted and taken on strength under the Military Service Act, 1917 at Vancouver, British Columbia (MacDougall... pp. 1, 11). He was assigned to the 1st Depot Battalion, B.C. Regiment (MacDougall... pp. 1, 11).
- Medical Status: He was pre-examined on October 11, 1917, at Nelson, B.C., and evaluated at Category "A-2" (Fit for active service overseas) (MacDougall... p. 1).

2. Domestic Duty and Brief Hospitalization (June–July 1918)

- Private MacDougall remained stationed in Canada for the duration of his military career (MacDougall... pp. 11, 13).
- June 25–29, 1918: Admitted to the Hastings Park Station Hospital in Vancouver, B.C., due to minor medical complications stemming from a post-vaccination reaction (MacDougall... p. 7). He was successfully discharged back to duty after four days (MacDougall... p. 7).
- July 19, 1918: Transferred out of the infantry depot and attached to the 11th Battalion, Canadian Garrison Regiment (C.G.R.) for domestic defense duties (MacDougall... pp. 9, 11).

3. Discharge and Demobilization (October 1918)

- October 2, 1918: Officially struck off strength from the 11th Battalion, C.G.R. at Vancouver, B.C. (MacDougall... pp. 11, 13)
- Reason for Discharge: Processed on early Demobilization to be returned directly to the Registrar's Records (MacDougall... pp. 11, 13).
- Total Active Service: 4 months and 12 days (MacDougall... pp. 1, 13). He never deployed overseas or saw frontline combat (MacDougall... pp. 11, 13). His proposed post-war civilian address was his previous residence at Nelson House in Nelson, B.C. (MacDougall... p. 13).

Medical & Dental Summary

- His medical history records show no lingering injuries, wounds, or structural disabilities incurred during his brief domestic deployment (MacDougall... pp. 1, 7).
- Dental Treatment: His dental charts show routine extractions were performed by a military dentist on teeth 3, 4, 14, 17, 19, 31, and 32 on May 23, 1918, immediately following his enlistment (MacDougall... p. 9).
